

Invisible in Daylight

Walk down any busy street and you'll see people rushing to work, scrolling on their phones, carrying coffee cups.... Look a little closer, and you may see someone sitting quietly against a wall with a blanket wrapped tightly around their shoulders. Many people in Malta do not realize, how big and annoying the problem is of homeless really is.

In Malta, which we ignore the homeless people, we may not see much, but homeless lives among us, and too often it goes unnoticed. It's easy to reduce homelessness in numbers, but behind every number figure there is a human story: a lost job, a drug or alcohol addiction, someone escaping domestic violence, others struggling to keep up to a rising rent that outpaced a steady income. Life without a home is more than lacking shelter.

It means no safe place to sleep, no access to showers, no address to put on job applications. It means facing judgement before someone knows your name and being humiliated. Yet within this struggle there is resilience and strength to keep moving forward. Many homeless individuals continue searching for work, protecting their families, and holding onto hope despite overwhelming odds. Even small acts, like giving food or a warm smile, can make a big difference in someone's life

Real change begins when we choose the priorities, tackle the problems when they arise and putting aside our pride.

Everyone deserves a place to call home!!!

Let us be the CHANGE!!!
